Presentation Summary

1. Gram Panchayat, Panchayat Raj System and participatory learning techniques in extension education.

2. SBM Rural: ODF/Sanitation and Hygiene management programmes in villages (may modify topic in line with theme).

The Panchayati Raj Institutions are playing meaningful role in the rural development programmes, there is no doubt that Article 40, 243P to 243ZG, 73rd Amendment, Panchayati Raj Act., 1994 and various policies and schemes are based on philosophy of welfare of village. The Rural Development in India is one of the most important factors for growth of the Indian economy. The Ministry of Rural Development in India is an apex body to develop the rural sector implementing several developmental programmes and projects. It needs data related to rural areas at village level.
